How to Go On Call on the Volunteer Connection Website

Sign up for on-call shifts through RC View and RC Respond

Updated October 12, 2026

What this does

Signing up for on-call shifts puts you on the roster Duty Officers see when a call comes in. Knowing who is available before the need arises helps them enormously.

Good to know

Your screens may look a little different depending on your permissions. The steps stay the same.

Volunteer Connection	RC View	RC Respond	Shifts	Confirm
log in	under your name	log in again	yellow button	you are on call

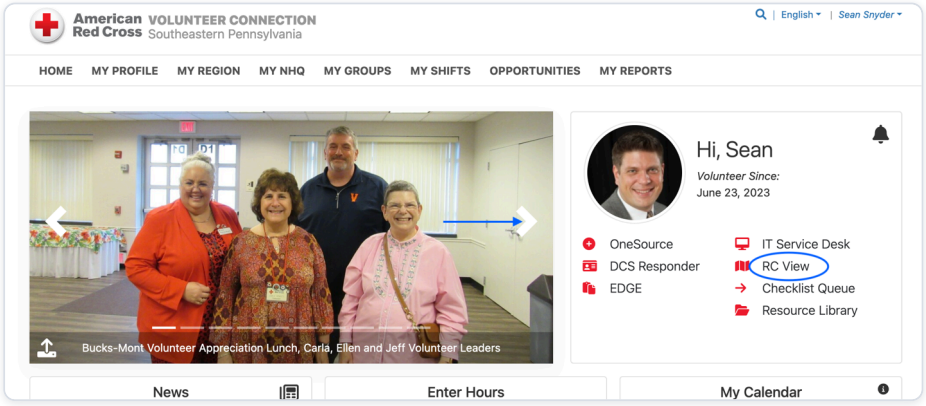

PART 1 Get to RC Respond

1 Go to Volunteer Connection and log in volunteerconnection.redcross.org

2 Click RC View

On the welcome page, your name and profile are at the top right. Under your name, click RC View.

3 Choose the RC Respond box

Scroll down a little to see six boxes. Click DAT Event Management System, usually called RC Respond.

4 Log in to Noggin

You are sent to a page that says Noggin. Log in with the same details you use for the Red Cross.

5 You are in RC Respond

PART 2 Pick your shifts

6 Click the yellow Shifts button

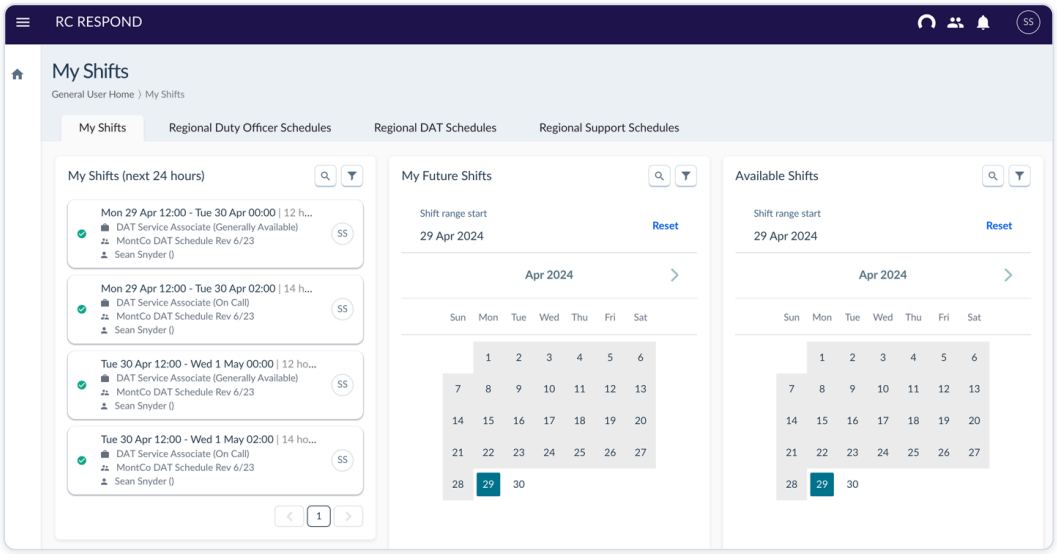

Scroll down past the information on current and past events and the response resources. All of it is useful, but for now you want Shifts.

7 Read the three calendars

The Shifts page shows three boxes:

- Left: My Shifts, next 24 hours. These cannot be cancelled.
- Center: future shifts you signed up for, more than 24 hours away. To cancel one, click it, then Unassign.
- Right: all available shifts. This is the one you want. Click a day, or scroll down to see shifts in six-hour blocks.

8 Click a shift, then Confirm

Click any shift you want to cover and click Confirm.

> Generally Available vs. On Call. Everyone starts as Generally Available: not on call, but a Duty Officer might try you in a pinch. On Call means you are ready, willing and able to go. Duty Officers work through their On Call list first.

9 Repeat as often as you like

You can sign up well in advance, but a week or two at a time usually works best. To remove yourself from a shift, do the same thing: the Confirm button now says Unassign.

PART 3 What happens when a call comes in

You get a text

During an On Call period, a text may come to your phone with the address and a choice to Accept or Reject. If you can go, tap Accept.

> Accepting does not mean go. Do not run to your car. The Duty Officer may have too many people, or not enough, and needs the right team mix. Stay home until the Duty Officer calls or texts you directly. A follow-up text saying Assigned still means wait.

Your team gets a group text

Usually you are added to a group text with your partners and the Duty Officer, and together you work out who is going and where to meet. The Duty Officer's name and number are in the request message, so you can reach out if you are unsure.

You never go anywhere alone in the Red Cross.

If you are ever unsure what to do, call the Duty Officer.

Thank you for all you do!
